PROBLEM OF ULSTER NO NEARER A SOLUTION

Red Hot Question of Irish
Home Rule for Rebellious
Province Becoming More
Incandescent Every Day.

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.]
London, Feb. 11.—John E. Redmond and Sir Edward Carson, the two biggest figures in the fight for and against home rule for Ireland, opposed each other in debate in the house of commons today.

Sir Edward Carson, head of the provisional government of Ulster, insisted that Ulster would accept no compromise which brought it under the rule of a Dublin parliament.

John Redmond, the Irish nationalist leader, replied that the exclusion of Ulster never could be the solution of the Irish question. There were features in both speeches, however, which encouraged those who hope for an amicable compromise of the questions at issue.

The discussion of home rule for Ireland was carried on simultaneously in the house of lords, where Lord Lansdowne said that any proposal for the exclusion of Ulster from the provisions of the measure must be accompanied by precautions for safeguarding the interests of unionists living outside the excluded area. Otherwise, he said, the proposal would not be acceptable to the unionist party.

London, Feb. 11.—The question of whether home rule for Ireland should include the northern province of Ulster, was discussed again today in the house of commons.

Sir John Simon, the attorney general, attacked the unionist amendment to the reply to the king's speech. The amendment declared "it would be disastrous for the house to proceed further with the government for Ireland bill until the measure had been submitted to the judgment of the country."

Sir Edward Carson, head of the "provisional government" of Ulster said:

"The words put into the king's mouth yesterday by the cabinet ministers are a condemnation of the home rule bill and a certification that it has utterly failed to furnish a solution of the Irish question. There is small wonder, in view of this certification, that the government shirks the idea of leaving the decision to the voice of the people."

"If Premier Asquith's promised 'suggestions' attempt to draw Ulster within the grip of the Dublin parliament, I will stand, regardless of all consequence with the people of Ulster in their policy of resistance."

DISSOLUTION OF OCTOPUS FAILS TO DISSOLVE

Standard Oil Decree Produced
Farical Results, in Opinion of Herbert Knox Smith, Ex-Commissioner.

TRADE COMMISSION MEASURE DISCUSSED

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.]
Washington, Feb. 11.—"Curious and farical results followed the Standard Oil dissolution decree; it did not enforce competition," Herbert Knox Smith, former commissioner of corporations, told the house commerce committee today at a hearing on the Murdock trade commission bill.

With William Brainer Lewis, dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, and D. H. Richberg of New York, Mr. Smith favored the Murdock bill, embodying the ideas of the Progressive party, as opposed to the Clayton administration bill. They declared the Murdock bill would be more effective.

Besides favoring a uniform accounting system, Mr. Smith urged the possibilities of co-operation between a trade commission and corporations, and declared the publicity that would follow would be of great benefit.

"There must be some administrative service," he said. "The courts cannot take its place." The Progressive witnesses declared that nine out of ten dissolutions under the Sherman law were useless, that corporations controlling patent rights or transportation facilities could be effectively broken up by the dissolution procedure, and that leaving the administration of the present laws entirely to the courts was too cumbersome and inadequate. They advocated empowering an interstate trade commission broadly to strip unfair practices.

The interstate trade commission bill and many amendments to it, proposed by Republicans and Democrats alike, were discussed at a White House conference today between President Wilson and members of the senate committee on interstate commerce.

The president spent an hour with the senators after which Chairman Newlands said an amendment prescribing the powers of the commission to proceed in its investigations only by due process of law and legislation to establish a legal rule of authentic evidence was the main topic before the conference.

Senators Lippitt and Oliver were the only Republicans who attended. It was understood that Senators Cummins and Clapp declined to accept the invitation of Chairman Newlands to go to the White House.

Senators Lippitt and Oliver told the president they would continue to co-operate with the Democrats in framing the legislation.

Senators Oliver and Lippitt want the trade commission's powers limited to prevent publication of the affairs of any innocent corporation, and would have the law guard against illegal search or seizure. Chairman Newlands asked Senator Oliver to draft such an amendment. Further conferences will take up regulation of holding companies.

LAS CRUCES BAR TO ENTERTAIN FOR JUDGE POPE

State Supreme Court Will Attend Banquet in His Honor on Feb. 23 When Federal Court Session Opens.

The members of the Dona Ana County Bar association have issued invitations for a banquet to be given February 23 next, when Judge W. H. Pope will open the first session of the United States court ever held in Las Cruces. E. C. Wade, Jr., assistant district attorney, who was in Albuquerque today returning home from Roswell where he has been in attendance upon the United States court session there, says that all members of the state supreme court have accepted the invitation to attend the banquet in Judge Pope's honor, and the justices expect to make the journey from Santa Fe to Las Cruces in automobiles.

The United States court session at Roswell, Mr. Wade says, will continue for another week, being entered chiefly with unimportant cases. Assistant District Attorney Coors who has been before the court at Roswell, is expected to return to Albuquerque Thursday. Mr. Wade left for Santa Fe this afternoon.

MYSTERIOUS MAN ON HORSEBACK MAKES DEADLY ASSAULT

Juan Garcia, Sixteen Year Old Boy from Dogtown, Victim of Unusual Attack in Coyote Canyon.

TARGET FOR TWO SHOTS FIRED DELIBERATELY

Juan Garcia, sixteen years old, a wood hater living in Maricopa, was the victim, he claims, of a mysterious and murderous attack in Coyote canyon about 1:30 yesterday afternoon, in which the boy was seriously wounded and came near to losing his life.

Garcia, who was brought to his home this morning and attended by Dr. Clayton, who removed the bullet from his right side, cannot identify the man who shot him, knows no reason for any attack upon him, and can give no explanation whatever of the shooting.

"I was finishing piling wood on my wagon, and getting ready to start to Albuquerque with the load," Garcia told Deputy Sheriff Dick Lewis this morning, and had sent my younger brother to bring in the horses, when a man riding a bay horse rode into the canyon, and to about fifty yards of me. He stopped his horse, for I was looking at him. Then he turned in the saddle, took deliberate aim at me and fired. The first shot did not hit me. I yelled at him. Then he raised the gun, took aim and shot again. That time he hit me and I fell down. The man turned his horse and rode away.

"He was too far away for me to see his face, or to tell whether he was an American or a Mexican. I do not know what kind of a gun it was, but it looked like a rifle."

The ball, which is cut and scurred, and looks as if it might have been used as a shot-gun slug, entered in the right side, coming out near the back and lodging under the skin. It did not cut the intestines and Dr. Clayton fears no trouble unless blood poisoning should result, which he thinks unlikely.

Young Garcia declares he has had no trouble with any one, and has no enemies that he knows of. He did not recognize the horse.

Deputy Sheriff Lewis at once sent three men to Coyote canyon to look the trail. The canyon is little frequented and the men may be able to find the stranger's trail.

JUDGE RAYNOLDS SAYS TALK IS PREMATURE

Points Out That It Is Still Two and a Half Years Before Gubernatorial Election Is Due to Arrive.

TERM AS JUDGE HAS STILL FIVE YEARS TO RUN

"I have read of my reported suggestion as a candidate for the governorship of New Mexico with great surprise," said Judge Herbert E. Reynolds to a reporter for The Herald this afternoon, when his attention was called to a statement from an El Paso newspaper to the effect that Judge Reynolds was being urged by his friends to accept the Republican nomination for the executive office at the next state election.

"I have not heard of the proposition before," said Judge Reynolds, "and it came to me strictly as a matter of five news. It occurs to me that as I have five years to remain in my present position as judge, and as no gubernatorial nominations are to be made for two and one-half years to come, that the whole matter is a trifle premature."

"I should consider the whole matter premature at this time, even had a nomination been suggested or proffered to me, which it has not."

According to the article in the El Paso paper, candidates for the congressional nomination will include H. F. Ferguson, Democrat; Herbert W. Clark, Col. R. E. Twitchell, Ryeo Bura, Ralph C. Ely and H. B. Holt, Republicans; Miguel A. Otero, George W. Prichard, and John Baron Bura, Progressives. It is pointed out that Governor McDonald, under the constitution, cannot be a candidate to succeed himself, candidates for his job including Judge Reynolds, Lieutenant E. C. De Baca, Granville A. Richardson, W. B. Walton, and Miguel A. Otero.

ANNUAL REMNANT SALE FRIDAY AT GOLDEN RULE

Biggest Bargain Event of the Year in Annual February Sale Feature of the Popular Store.

The remnant sale for years has been the star feature of the annual February clearance sale of the Golden Rule dry goods store. This year the February remnant sale is set for Friday, February 13th, and promises to offer more in the way of genuine bargains than ever before.

This year everything in the store which may properly be classed as a remnant, goes with the sale, and goes at exactly one-half the regular price. The sale includes dress goods, silks, singhams, wash goods, white goods of all kinds, ribbons, etc. At the same time a great final offering of women's coats, suits and dresses, values of which go to $25 will be made at $10 each. This includes the entire line and is the greatest ready-to-wear bargain offering ever made by an Albuquerque store.

The remnant sale opens Friday morning at 10 o'clock. There is always a rush for this most popular of Golden Rule bargain events, and it will pay to be in line early.

ONLY 2 COWS BUT MANY BRANDS TO PUZZLE COURT

Replevin Suit Causes Judge Craig to Take the Court and Witnesses on a Joy Ride.

An automobile tour to the Louden dairy, south of Albuquerque, participated in by the court, the principals in a replevin suit, and half a dozen witnesses, with costs of the joy ride taxed against the loser in the suit is the somewhat original stunt pulled off in Justice of the Peace Craig's court this afternoon. And thereby hangs a tale, or better two tails, for the whole matter hinges upon the fight for possession of two red cows, which, from the testimony adduced at the hearing yesterday and this afternoon must have been decorated with all the brands in the New Mexico brand book.

The replevin suit was brought by Peter Vichi, a butcher of 228 North Third street, who claims that he bought the cows from Frank Wilson of the Western Meat company, and the writ returned against Robert Louden of the Louden dairy, in whose possession the cows are and who claims that he came in possession of them in the usual way by purchase.

Vichi contends that the two cows were part of a herd of twelve belonging to him and being grazed near the Louden dairy south of town. The case went smoothly enough until various witnesses, having agreed that the cows were red cows, began to testify as to the brands. Vichi testified as to the brands. Vichi testified as to the brand on the animals. So did Mr. Louden, who contended that the brands were wholly different from those described by Vichi. Then the Vichi herd's who had charged the Vichi cows as a testified to a set of totally different brands. Then Frank J. Wilson of the Western Meat company testified to another, tally different set of brands. Vichi came the cattle inspector, supposed have inspected the Vichi cows as testified to a totally different set. At this point, which was reached this morning, the court threw up hands and declared that having ascertained that the cows were red, proposed to find out about the brand. To that end, court, alleged own attorneys, and witnesses departed 1:30 this afternoon for the scene. The cows had not returned to 3:30 but were expected at that moment.
